A WORD TO WISE WOMEN ABOUT DOG-DAY CLOTHES

Concerning Coiffures.

Raiment for man and maid this summer suggests the easy-going of sunkissed lands. It looks as if it were not premeditated, but just grew, like the leaf on the bough. Broad shouldered men, who have stepped straight from Gibson drawings, go by in light flannels whose loose fit marks the cock of fashion's walk. Straw sailors or panama Alpines top their closely cropped craniums, and alongside their big patent leather shoe trip the bottines of a maid whose trottoir skirt calls for faultiess footgear.

Smart dog-day folk are faultless everywhere, and the washable textures they now affect have a special seductiveness. From head to toe they look as if they were eternally tubbing, which is really the case, for without this bandbox freshness the finest summer getup is a fallure.

In the shops the onlooker is quite bewildered by the array of frecks alone, whose white or delicately tinted materials hint of cool sherbets and the julepstraw, for such toilettes are affected by the summer girl for her own pleasurings.

The skirts of all summer walking owns are extremely short and stiched flatiy at the hips, the flare beginning usually just above the knees. Many smart little jacket effects accompany those in the imported linens, crashes, and ducks, whose undersleeves and vests are sometimes of coarse white net

BOUDOIR HINTS.

The evening head adornments this New Ideas for the Summer Girl's Toi year are varied, and in many cases more than usually dainty and desirable. Some let Table.

Here is something that is brand new than usually dainty and desirable. Some of the simpler kind are indeed more attractive, in the estimation of many people, than the stately tiaras of gems, which are, by the way, far more numerous than formerly. Members of smart society who used to be content with a diamond star or aigrette, in this extravagant age, feel bound to possess one tiara at least, perhaps two. A single rose is frequently worn in preference by owners of tiaras, Lady Warwick, for instance, being frequently seen at the opera with one beautiful pink rose placed in her fair hair, says "Home Notes." Mrs. George Cornwallis West remains faithful to a flat wreath of leaves or a gold filet across her dusky locks, while many others prefer a tiny wreath of flowers, forget-me-nots or wee to stand the opera house or a well filled theater to realize how liberal the fashions are nowadays.

In those convenient little powder books there are pretty new books that have satin covers, blue, pink, heliotrope, red-all colors—and they do not cost more to them, too, than the attractive outside. Whoever will polish away the soil of a summer day's trip through the streets may do it with a sheet of powder which has her own particular tone of complexion; there is rose, white and "Racchel"—named for the famous actress—and a brown tint for the bruncette.

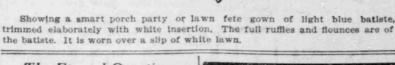

woman knows all about them, but there woman knows all about them, but there may be a few points that slip the mind. The Ellen Terry puffs are those which come in little flat bags—the bag the size of the puff, the puff the size of the bag, for they are inseparable. The bags are in silk, leather, or chamois, and there is the wool puff and the swansdown. It is the wool puff that the woman of today uses. With that she can rub the powder on and rub it off again or rub it in so that she will not look as if she had been dusted in a flour mill.

The wool puffs are, of course, to be found separately and are thin and flat and in different sizes, ranging in price from 10 to 50 cents, and in size from two and one-quarter to four and one-half inches in diameter.

Nail polishers in boats are among the newest things in the pollsher of ordinary style. These have been found in silver, but the more recent are the wooden boats to match the woodenhandled pollshers. Many kinds of wood are used for the backs of the pollshers, the boats matching.
